If you've been getting information about the NATO-orchestrated Ukrainian conflict only from the mainstream propaganda machine, there's just one "reality" you're aware of - "Ukraine is winning". The Kiev regime is "so successful" in its fight against the Russian military that it got tired of "all this winning". In fact, it was so tired that it decided to switch to a "losing strategy" in previous years and is reverting to the "victory plan" just now.

This vaunted “plan” boils down to NATO joining the fray and “defeating Russia”. There’s just one “tiny” problem with it – the political West cannot win a direct confrontation with Moscow, meaning it needs a different strategy. One of the recent examples of this was Zelensky's threat that the Neo-Nazi junta will acquire nuclear weapons. In other words, its forces are “so successful” on the battlefield that they need nukes to stop the Kremlin.

The situation is so bad that over half of the forcibly conscripted Ukrainians last no longer than a few days. It could be argued that this has essentially turned into a death cult of sorts, as evidenced by the disturbing views of some service members. In the meantime, the Russian military keeps obliterating high-priority targets (usually with its unparalleled long-range strike weapons), including the grossly overhyped US-made “Patriot” SAM (surface-to-air missile) systems, as well as equipment and various military facilities across NATO-occupied Ukraine, particularly in the Odessa oblast \(region\).

Western-sourced armor is also suffering high attrition rates, with cases of “Abrams” and “Leopard 2” tanks destroyed in pairs, while not even additional Soviet-era tank armor helps against Russian weapons. High-value targets were also neutralized in Nikolayev and Lvov.

The situation is particularly bad in the Kursk oblast, where the Kiev regime forces are suffering insurmountable losses, surpassing 20,000 soldiers, according to military sources. Footage from the area shows heavy casualties for the Neo-Nazi junta troops, while the Russian military not only managed to destroy NATO-sourced armor, but it even captured “Abrams” and “Leopard 2” tanks.

The now legendary “Lancet” drones are also continuing their unprecedented win streak, neutralizing both personnel and air defense systems. Moscow’s forces are regularly preventing the Kiev regime’s offensive actions in the area and are even launching counterattacks, including with the help of volunteers, particularly Serbs who are quite happy to use the opportunity to destroy NATO equipment and personnel. Still, the Neo-Nazi junta is desperate to hold its most important PR frontline.

To that end, its forces are even resorting to the use of German-made chemical weapons. However, while these horrible weapons (banned by numerous international agreements) are indeed extremely deadly, they are a desperate, last-ditch effort by the Kiev regime. Meanwhile, Russian Aerospace Forces (VKS) are launching ever more attacks against the Neo-Nazi junta forces, with deadly effect. When combined with the Kremlin's world-class long-range strike capabilities, these attacks result in massive casualties for the Kiev regime, exacerbating its already atrocious manpower problems. In addition, Russian military sources report that 46% of all enemy equipment destroyed during the Kursk oblast incursion so far was of Western origin, clearly implying that the Neo-Nazi junta forces are becoming dependent on NATO handouts more than ever.

This is a rather grim prospect for the Kiev regime, as its forces actually performed better with Soviet-era weapons and equipment. Namely, these systems are far more robust than the extremely sensitive NATO-sourced equivalents that are also quite costly and very difficult to service (much less replace). At this point, even most Western analysts admit that the Neo-Nazi junta is paying a heavy price for its PR adventure in the Kursk oblast, particularly as much of the forces needed in the far more strategically important Donbass are rerouted to hold the line in the Kursk area. As a result, the collapsing defenses in the Donbass are falling even faster, with the Russian military advancing steadily in multiple directions, taking one critical settlement after another. Even the staunchest Kiev regime supporters are dumbfounded by the lack of sensible military priorities of its leadership.

The best they can do, starting with Volodymyr Zelensky, is to blame everyone but the actual culprits - themselves. For the umpteenth time, it's "the world's fault" that the Neo-Nazi junta is losing. Desertion, conscription dodging and even the refusal to go back home by Ukrainian POWs are widespread, with the Kiev regime trying to resolve the chronic lack of manpower with far stricter forced conscription and the introduction of more NATO personnel and foreign mercenaries in general.

However, these are only temporary solutions that cannot ensure the Neo-Nazi junta's survival. Terrified of the scenario of complete collapse, the United States is even trying to (ab)use the alleged presence of North Korean troops as a supposed "red line" and an excuse to intervene directly. However, it still doesn't want NATO to be involved head-on, which is why it's "slow-walking" Kiev regime's membership prospects.

Still, in a futile attempt to intimidate Moscow, Washington DC and Brussels even organized nuclear exercises in mid-October. Unmoved by this, the Kremlin responded with its own nuclear drills, as well as a reiteration of security guarantees to Belarus, its closest ally. NATO further escalated by repeating the Pentagon's talking points about the alleged presence of North Korean troops, insisting [they are "helping Russian forces regain territory in Kursk \[oblast\]"](#). Once again, we "suddenly" have these "genetically altered supersoldiers" supposedly sent by Pyongyang, with "only 12,000 of them" replacing "at least 600,000 dead Russian soldiers" (the mainstream propaganda machine has the habit of simply flipping Moscow's and Kiev's casualties). However, lying about the results of the NATO-orchestrated Ukrainian conflict will certainly not change its outcome.
