Dr. Daniel Nagase, persecuted for saving his patients' lives with Ivermectin, explains that the experimental injections are particularly dangerous for children.*

Notwithstanding the fact that the jabs do not work, and that natural immunity is superior, he explains that the introduction of an artificial spike protein into children's developing immune systems presents added risks of changing their DNA, impairing their immune “specificity”, and increasing their risks of cancer.

He concludes that jabs against just one protein are “stupid”, and that “variants” of influenza are never a problem with natural immunity.
