

A Forthcoming Novel About True Love and a Fake Pandemic

By John C. A. Manley

Global Research, June 16, 2021

MuchAdoAboutCorona.ca

Theme: History

All Global Research articles can be read in 51 languages by activating the “Translate Website” drop down menu on the top banner of our home page (Desktop version).

Visit and follow us on Instagram at @crg_globalresearch.

Hands on hips, she stood behind the counter, glaring. “No face, no service.”

“What?” I blurted, as the door swung behind me, jingling a bell.

“This is a bakery, not a bank,” she responded with all the sharpness of a knife swiftly slicing bread.

I took a few slow steps forward and shook my head in non-understanding. The overwhelming smell of fresh sourdough penetrated the polyester mask stretched over my nose, mouth and chin. The twenty-something girl with a slight German accent raised a hand mirror from the countertop. She aimed it at me.

“You look like a bank robber.”

So opens the first chapter of my forthcoming novel, Much Ado About Corona: A Dystopian Love Story - a book I hope will help derail the corona craze before it’s too late. (Note: The working titles were previously COVID-27 and Brave New Normal.)

“...politicians, governments fear books,” says Richard Evans, author of the New York Times bestseller The Christmas Box, in an interview. “Every revolution started with a book. Every single one of them — whether it is religious, cultural or political — there is always a book at the base of it.”

A forthcoming novel about true love and a fake pandemic

Uncle Tom's Cabin had such an effect on the Civil War. When Lincoln met author Harriet Stowe he's been quoted as saying: "So this is the little lady who started this great war."

Alabama author Mark Childress credited Harper Lee's To Kill a Mockingbird with having a similar impact on the civil rights movement: "I think the book really helped [white people] come to understand what was wrong with the system in the way that any number of treatises could never do, because it was popular art..."

Likewise, in the battle against totalitarianism, here are five dystopian classics:

- Aldous Huxley's Brave New World
- George Orwell's 1984
- Ray Bradbury's Fahrenheit 451
- Alan Moore and David Lloyd's V for Vendetta
- Margaret Atwood's The Handmaid's Tale

Back in March, when lockdown began, I put down the urban fantasy novel I've been (re)writing for the last ten years; and picked up my pencil to write a short story set in a grim COVID future. 85,000 words later I was faced with a novel about the novel coronavirus: Much Ado About Corona: A Dystopian Love Story. It's a story which seeks not to predict the outcome of the corona hoax but to prevent it.

I'll release the novel in three parts; and then altogether as a single book. Part one is coming soon. Subscribe for behind-the-scenes updates.

*

Note to readers: Please click the share buttons above or below. Follow us on Instagram, @crg_globalresearch. Forward this article to your email lists. Crosspost on your blog site, internet forums. etc.

John C. A. Manley has spent over a decade ghostwriting for medical doctors, naturopaths and chiropractors. Since March 2020, he has been writing articles that question and expose the contradictions in the COVID-19 narrative and control measures. He is also completing a novel, Much Ado About Corona: A Dystopian Love Story. You can visit his website at MuchAdoAboutCorona.ca.

The original source of this article is MuchAdoAboutCorona.ca
Copyright © John C. A. Manley, MuchAdoAboutCorona.ca, 2021

Comment on Global Research Articles on our Facebook page

Become a Member of Global Research

Articles by: John C. A. Manley

Disclaimer: The contents of this article are of sole responsibility of the author(s). The Centre for Research on Globalization will not be responsible for any inaccurate or incorrect statement in this article. The Centre of Research on Globalization grants permission to cross-post Global Research articles on community internet sites as long the source and copyright are acknowledged together with a hyperlink to the original Global Research article. For publication of Global Research articles in print or other forms including commercial internet sites, contact: publications@globalresearch.ca www.globalresearch.ca contains copyrighted material the use of which has not always been specifically authorized by the copyright owner. We are making such material available to our readers under the provisions of "fair use" in an effort to advance a better understanding of political, economic and social issues. The material on this site is distributed without profit to those who have expressed a prior interest in receiving it for research and educational purposes. If you wish to use copyrighted material for purposes other than "fair use" you must request permission from the copyright owner.

For media inquiries: publications@globalresearch.ca