

Guaidó-USAID Trucks Torched on Border

By Kurt Nimmo

Global Research, February 24, 2019

Region: Latin America & Caribbean, USA
Theme: Law and Justice, Police State & Civil Rights

The "humanitarian aid" false flag has devolved into violence on the Francisco de Paula Santander bridge in Venezuela.

.

.

All aid trucks on the Francisco de Paula Santander bridge to Venezuela are now on fire — the cargo was able to be removed from the last truck and taken back across the bridge into Colombia. #Venezuela pic.twitter.com/ivzk2Ai9Db

— WorldCentralKitchen (@WCKitchen) February 23, 2019

Venezuelan security forces attack trucks carrying humanitarian aid.

Clashes between security forces and protesters at the Simon Bolivar breach continue. #breaking #23feb #venezuela #23FAvalanchaHumanitaria pic.twitter.com/rqFFNGlsHx

— Amir Richani (@amir richani) February 23, 2019

BREAKING: Violence amid protests and clashes at Venezuela's borders, as efforts ramp up to force foreign humanitarian aid into the country, despite the Maduro regime's efforts to keep it out. pic.twitter.com/QCPAUWzTfz

— MSNBC (@MSNBC) February 23, 2019

Meanwhile, in Santa Elena de Uairén near the Venezuela-Brazil border, gunfire has erupted.

Heavy gunfire heard in Santa Elena de Uairén near the Venezuela-Brazil border; reports of injuries and possible fatalities pic.twitter.com/bGy4FqhhCY

— BNO News (@BNONews) February 23, 2019

Imagine the response if Venezuela tried to drive a caravan of "humanitarian aid" across the border in McAllen, Texas, Nogales on the Arizona border, or the crossing in California at Mexicali. It would likely resemble Bush the Elder's Highway of Death in Kuwait.

Aerial view of "The Highway of Death" on which Iraqi forces suffered devastating losses at the hands of Coalition Forces as they retreated from Kuwait in February 1991. Between 1,400 and 2,000 vehicles were destroyed or abandoned. pic.twitter.com/fcSNgKolL7

— Antoine Bousquet (@AJBousquet) February 21, 2019

Meanwhile, there was an opportunity for Juan Guaido, the self-proclaimed leader of Venezuela, to partake in a photo-op.

#Guaido mounts humanitarian aid truck headed to #Venezuela#Colombia #23FAvalanchaHumanitaria pic.twitter.com/ajVbtWXABB

- Ruptly (@Ruptly) February 23, 2019

This was played up by Trump's neocon national security adviser, John Bolton. He said earlier the next target is Nicaragua and its leader, Daniel Ortega.

The U.S. has provided critically needed aid for the people of Venezuela. Now is the time for Venezuelan military to allow aid through the border. As Interim President Guaido said today "Those who accompany us to save the lives of Venezuelans are true patriots." https://t.co/Ha3PZFBjoF

— John Bolton (@AmbJohnBolton) February 23, 2019

Amid Washington's crude attempts to carry out regime change in Venezuela, John Bolton already threatens the next victim – Nicaragua is in the cross-hairs now. via Angelina Siard pic.twitter.com/hBld4fzCHB

Victor Kuhnovets (@vicktop55) February 23, 2019

If you ever had doubt Bolton and the neocons are living in 1963 during the height of the Cold War, consider the following tweet.

National security adviser John Bolton: "Some people call the country now 'Cuba-zuela' reflecting the grip that Cuba's military and security forces have on the Maduro regime. We think that's a strategic significant threat to the United States" https://t.co/fW6GsThWut_pic.twitter.com/S7GF7j7qnS

— ABC News (@ABC) January 28, 2019

"On November 1, 2018, Bolton denounced Nicaragua, Cuba, and Venezuela as a "troika of tyranny" and saying that he looks forward to watching their governments fall." (by K. Livingstone) https://t.co/q5VHjV6Z9k

- Carly (@Carly|Morris) February 23, 2019

It looks like the situation on the border will devolve into violence and the US will use this to argue for military intervention, either by the US or in combo with Brazil and especially Colombia. The sanctions imposed on the country will take too long for impatient neocons.

The incidents on the border crossings in Venezuela are a great propaganda victory for the US. It's not clear who is responsible for torching (and possibly bombing) "aid" trucks on the Francisco de Paula Santander bridge, but the blame was quickly placed on the Maduro and the Venezuelan military.

*

Note to readers: please click the share buttons below. Forward this article to your email lists. Crosspost on your blog site, internet forums. etc.

This article was originally published on the author's blog site: Another Day in the Empire.

Kurt Nimmo is a frequent contributor to Global Research.

The original source of this article is Global Research Copyright © Kurt Nimmo, Global Research, 2019

Comment on Global Research Articles on our Facebook page

Become a Member of Global Research

Articles by: Kurt Nimmo

Disclaimer: The contents of this article are of sole responsibility of the author(s). The Centre for Research on Globalization will not be responsible for any inaccurate or incorrect statement in this article. The Centre of Research on Globalization grants permission to cross-post Global Research articles on community internet sites as long the source and copyright are acknowledged together with a hyperlink to the original Global Research article. For publication of Global Research articles in print or other forms including commercial internet sites, contact: publications@globalresearch.ca www.globalresearch.ca contains copyrighted material the use of which has not always been specifically authorized by the copyright owner. We are making such material available to our readers under the provisions of "fair use" in an effort to advance a better understanding of political, economic and social issues. The material on this site is distributed without profit to those who have expressed a prior interest in receiving it for research and educational purposes. If you wish to use copyrighted material for purposes other than "fair use" you must request permission from the copyright owner.

For media inquiries: publications@globalresearch.ca