

London Bombings - "Today we are all Londoners

...."

The innocent always bear the scars, suffer the ultimate sacrifice, of mistaken political policies.

By Felicity Arbuthnot and Luci Carolan.

Global Research, July 13, 2005

13 July 2005

Region: Europe

Theme: Crimes against Humanity, US

NATO War Agenda

In-depth Report: London 7/7

The innocent always bear the scars, suffer the ultimate sacrifice, of mistaken political policies.

However, the sadness of the deaths and casualties of 7/7 have been compounded by the reckless language of lawyers who should know better. Prime Minister Blair and Foreign Secretary Jack Straw near instantly pointed the finger in intemperate language, at Islam. The pieces, the injured, the bodies and body parts were still being treated, accounted for and retrieved - there is no evidence as to who committed these acts. 'Guilty until proved innocent' is a new facet to British justice.

A white tent has been erected at the side of the Thames, in London's Embankment Gardens now designated a Memorial Garden. Flowers have been planted and white bouquets left by Ministers and Church dignitaries and a book of condolence opened. 'We are all Londoners today', we were told on the day of the tragedy.

A white tent is often erected at Muslim mournings, of course. So may we add also the humblest and most inadequate of apologies to those to whom in our name, the same unimaginable grief has been visited. There is a countless humanity who are not alone 'all Londoners today'. Today, we are also 'all' Iraqis, Afghans, Palestinians, the forgotten of the Balkans war.

We are also all from the numerous other nations, forgotten victims of American aggression, since the 'liberation' of Europe in 1945.

Any human heart bleeds for any tragedy, anywhere. And that is the key. Humanity shares tragedy. John Donne, British thinker and poet, dead nearly four hundred years is as poignant, now as then. He truly speaks for our common humanity which transcends race, language, location, colour:

'No man is an island, entire unto itself,

Every man is a piece of the -globe -

A part of the main.

Any man's death diminishes me,

I am involved in Mankind,

And therefore, never send to know for whom the bell tolls,

It tolls for thee.'

The original source of this article is Global Research
Copyright © Felicity Arbuthnot and Luci Carolan., Global Research, 2005

Comment on Global Research Articles on our Facebook page

Become a Member of Global Research

Articles by: Felicity Arbuthnot and Luci Carolan.

Disclaimer: The contents of this article are of sole responsibility of the author(s). The Centre for Research on Globalization will not be responsible for any inaccurate or incorrect statement in this article. The Centre of Research on Globalization grants permission to cross-post Global Research articles on community internet sites as long the source and copyright are acknowledged together with a hyperlink to the original Global Research article. For publication of Global Research articles in print or other forms including commercial internet sites, contact: publications@globalresearch.ca www.globalresearch.ca contains copyrighted material the use of which has not always been specifically authorized by the copyright owner. We are making such material available to our readers under the provisions of "fair use" in an effort to advance a better understanding of political, economic and social issues. The material on this site is distributed without profit to those who have expressed a prior interest in receiving it for research and educational purposes. If you wish to use copyrighted material for purposes other than "fair use" you must request permission from the copyright owner.

For media inquiries: publications@globalresearch.ca