

Marionette Theater: Boris Bojo Resigns, as UK Searches for Next Globalist Puppet

A once promising nationalist leader ends tenure as WEF-approved, ESG-compliant marionette.

I can’t think of a single world leader who has done more damage to humanity, since 2019, than Boris Johnson. And yet, his reign of terror over a once great empire was not enough for the proponents of The Great Reset and Build Back Better agenda.

Johnson generated more COVID hysteria than any other world leader.

He pursued two full years of authoritarian rule, pursuing ruthless lockdowns, implementing vaccine passports, installing a surveillance state, and making a mockery of the unalienable rights of U.K. citizens.

He catered to every slogan and policy initiative of the World Economic Forum globalist mafia.

And still, the U.K. Prime Minister has been quickly relinquished of his marionette duties for not moving the levers of his country fast enough in the direction of global tyranny.

Having secured the prime minister role thanks to his Brexit leadership, Johnson quickly pivoted away from any semblance of a nationalist leader interested in protecting the rights of the British people. His tenure quickly became a relentless policy pursuit of selling out his own countrymen to a one-world, ESG-compliant, WEF-approved agenda.

After two years of depriving citizens of their basic liberties, Johnson summarized his agenda as “Building back greener, building back fairer, and building back more equal and, how shall I... in a more gender-neutral and perhaps more feminine way.”

Johnson confirmed his exit Thursday morning. “It is clearly now the will of the parliamentary Conservative Party that there should be a new leader ... and therefore a new prime minister,” the British PM said.

What exactly is “Conservative” about the Tories in the U.K., you ask?

Well, like their counterparts in the U.S. Republican Party, they act to “conserve” the status quo. And if that means conserving communism, the tories are happy to align with the mission. The status quo in Britain is progressive, suicidal, authoritarian globalism. So the “Conservatives” there are fulfilling their role just swimmingly.

It was a pleasure to welcome you to Cornwall Mr President. Together we’re going to build back better from the pandemic, help to vaccinate the world and make 2021 the decisive moment in the fight against climate change.

In short, don’t expect a nationalist, populist, or more libertarian leader to run the show next. BoJo The Clown was tossed aside by his own government because he was not moving fast enough to implement a totalitarian agenda. Therefore, his successor should be expected to accelerate the move in the direction of despotism.
