

Attacks and the Migrant Crisis, this washed up between the headlines...

According to this latest story from Bloomberg News, German Interior Minister Thomas de Maiziere has revealed that Syrian passport found next to the alleged 'suicide bomber' in the Paris terror attacks may have been planted.

"There are indications that this was a planted lead, but it still can't be ruled out that this was indeed an IS terrorist posing as a refugee," he told reporters in Berlin on Tuesday.

So this leads to the only conclusion which actually holds water in the real forensic world (not the imaginary corporate media-generated circumstantial one):

Reports that the identity in the passport may have been registered in several countries along the so-called Balkan route raise the suspicion that it could be a deliberate attempt to implicate refugees and "make people feel unsafe," de Maiziere said.

As we informed our readers yesterday, what's most important here is that the lack of any real evidence in this case (outside of assumptions and speculations) effectively destroys the fabricated talking point which has joined together this 'ISIS terrorist' event together with the 'Migrant Crisis'.

In other words, if you still believe the mainstream media's version of events – then you've been duped.

Meanwhile, a wave of faux hysteria is drowning American political discourse, making the new "Syrian Refugee Scare" the latest, greatest political 'wedge issue' since gay marriage and abortion – seemingly tailor-made for the ongoing 2016 Presidential election circus in the US.

The following is a letter from Matthew Mead, the Governor of Wyoming, sent yesterday and marked to the attention of President Barack Obama:

Office of the Governor

November 17, 2015

President Barack Obama
The White House
1600 Pennsylvania Avenue NW
Washington, DC 20500

Dear Mr. President,

This country was made strong by immigration. Since World War II, our country has had a refugee program that has provided sanctuary from war-torn parts of the world. Both the immigration program and the refugee program require the certainty that terrorists from Syria or any part of the world will not be allowed into our country.

Wyoming does not have a refugee program so we are left to the vetting process done by the United Nations, your administration and other states. Wyoming will not accept a system that allows terrorists from any country in our state. In light of the horrific terrorist attacks a few days ago in Paris, I ask you to halt the refugee process until it provides the security promised to and demanded by all Wyoming and United States citizens.

Sincerely,

Matthew H. Mead
Governor

The Honorable John Barrasso, U.S. Senate
The Honorable Cynthia Lummis, U.S. House of Representatives

According to beltway grapevine, yesterday, some 30 state governors were involved in a conference call demanding the same as governor Mead has laid out in his letter. The White House tweeted back, "Welcome Refugees"...

While 'Conservatives' might be irate about this latest supposed crisis, they, and others like them, should know that they are being manipulated by the very party who planted the fake passport at the scene of the crime. Failure to grasp this important reality means that you will be doomed to be carried away in the current tsunami of fear and war rhetoric.

Readers should also be reminded that the French security services and government planners were holding as 'mass casualty', multi-agency drill in the city center - on the the same day as last week's alleged 'terrorist' attacks in Paris.

What's most disturbing is just how predictable the modus operandi of these types of false flag events has become, as is the accompanying agenda which normally follows them, and as we can now see, its normally based on a lie.

Capitalizing on the fear they've created, the Establishment and their many political leaders are now demanding a wider war in the Middle East. All they need is a pretext.

Don't let them have it.
