"This is the same machine that has always been there and available and had available to it enormous amounts of resources – a tsunami of resources – to throw at a disinformation campaign to muddy the waters and confuse people's perception, the purpose of which was to overwhelm, drown out in noise the people who were carrying the real message."

– Michael C. Ruppert, (from the April 13, 2014 program)

The Global Research News Hour has striven over the course of the past six years to provide listeners with access to substantive analysis which challenges the dominant narratives furthering war, repression and despoiling of planet Earth. Putting together a weekly radio program in addition to the regular GRTV video productions takes considerable time, research, energy, and other resources.

Global Research, which podcasts the program, depends on the support of its audience to stay afloat at a time when courageous voices of dissent are coming under attack. Please consider becoming a member, or making a donation to Global Research to help guide independent journalism through these turbulent waters. All Hands on Deck!

For the duration of the summer, the Global Research News Hour is highlighting past shows. Broadcasters are welcome and encouraged to use the repeat broadcasts on this webpage. However, broadcasters are free to avail themselves of any of the shows on the Global Research News Hour webpage.

Thanks again to our faithful listeners and supporters. And a very special thanks to the various community and internet stations (listed below) who carry the show.

My Lai 50 Years Later: Reflections on the Vietnam War and Its Meaning Today

Seymour Hersh was the reporter who broke the story and brought it to the attention of the world twenty months later. The news shocked a nation and gave a dose of adrenaline to the burgeoning anti-war movement, which would largely succeed in bringing an end to this dreadful, deadly foreign policy blunder.[1]

As disturbing as My Lai and similar incidents at the time may have been, U.S. sponsored military violence in the post 9/11 period is no less gruesome and barbaric than what was confronted in the 1960s and 70s. [2][3]So, why has the anti-war movement withered to the point of irrelevancy?

This week's Global Research News Hour program begins to address this and other related questions in a feature commemorating the 50th anniversary of My Lai.

[The Plot to Kill Martin Luther King: "We All Knew He \[Ray\] Was Not the Shooter". A Conversation with William Pepper on Global Research](#)

William Pepper's account of King's death, as encompassed in three books, including his latest, The Plot to Kill King: The Truth Behind the Assassination of Martin Luther King Jr., provides an indispensable resource for those not content with the official story of King's Murder. Not only does his work lay out more than 3 decades of diligent research into the assassination, including an under-reported wrongful death civil trial in 1999, it provides a notable case study on how and why high-level conspiracies, involving government entities, carry out crimes and successfully conceal them from the public.

In this 50th anniversary commemoration of the death of one of America's most inspiring crusaders for social and economic justice, the Global Research News Hour is proud to present this exclusive feature-length interview with Dr. William Pepper.
