Senior Politician: NATO Seeks to Disintegrate Libya

TEHRAN: A senior Libyan politician warned of NATO's suspicious moves in his country, saying that the West is seeking to prolong the war in Libya in a bid to disintegrate the North African country to plunder its rich oil resources.

"We know that the NATO coalition seeks its own interests by prolonging the war and wants to divide the country into several parts, but the Libyan nation is opposed to this option," Secretary-General of Libya's National Movement Meftah Lamloum told FNA on Sunday.

Lamloum expressed his deep suspicion about NATO's goals in Libya, and cautioned that the western countries are seeking to plunder the country's rich oil resources.

He further opposed foreign military intervention in his country, and underlined that the crisis in Libya can only be settled by the Libyan people.

Many civilians have reportedly been killed since the Western coalition unleashed a major air campaign against the Libyan regime forces on March 19 under a UN no-fly zone mandate.

The Western military alliance has refused to apologize for the deadly bombardments.
