

"No Mask? We Won't Ask."

(Poster for retail stores)

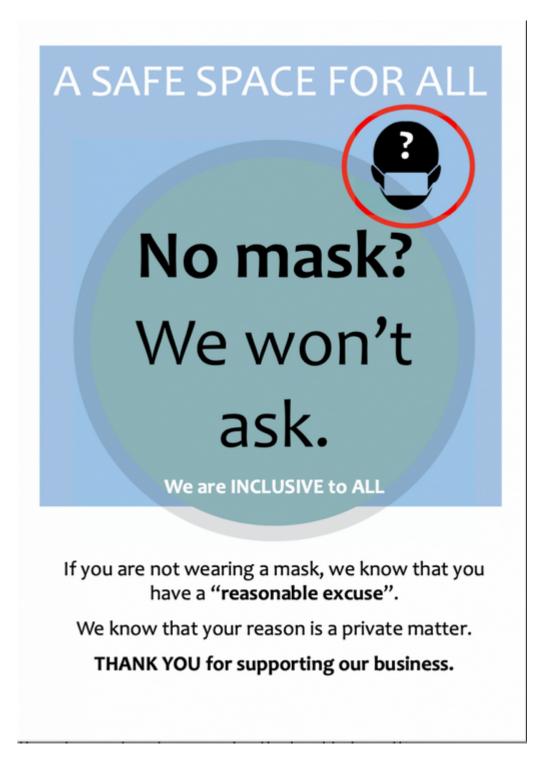

By John C. A. Manley Global Research, September 23, 2020 Theme: Science and Medicine

I encourage you to download the poster below and make some print outs. If you have a small business, and it's legal to do so in your district, please put it up in your shop window. If you don't run a business, you can bring it to shops that you patronize, and ask them to put it up. (And if you live in Melbourne then just forget about it.)

Recently, Susanna Russo printed out many copies, headed to downtown Ajax, Ontario, and asked businesses to post it in their front window. She said most took the sign. After all, most businesses want more customers. Especially after three months of lockdown.

Business owners know they have three types of customers:

- 1. Those who want everybody wearing face diapers.
- 2. Those who are against forced masking.
- 3. Those who go along with the masks; but would be happier if they didn't have to bother carrying around a germ collector.

For regions offering exemptions, the above poster lets you please all three types of customers, plus the local bylaw officer.

It's no secret that forced masking in retail stores is driving people online. After all, the government isn't requiring Amazon to force its customers to wear a mask.

The above poster lets people who prefer to just wear their face know that they have a "safe space." Pretty strange that in a matter of months, breathing without a droplet guard can make you feel like an outcast. Doesn't matter that every single randomized control trial (that I know of at least) shows that muzzling people doesn't stop the spread of influenza-like illnesses. In fact, studies show it doesn't even help in surgery.
