The Brutality Against Our Youth Illustrates What Must be Reclaimed

As a formerly patriotic American, I had lost all hope for the future of the U.S. until seeing the anti-genocide student protests. The protesters are like pure green shoots rising up from what had appeared to be impenetrable slime.

The battle to maintain an America-first United States government was lost, not coincidentally, when President John F. Kennedy was assassinated in 1963; he had been in the middle of a standoff with AIPAC's predecessor to force it to register as an agent of a foreign government to end its election interference. The demand was dropped when he died: Lyndon Johnson turned out to be a strong supporter of Israel. In April, 1973, Senator William Fulbright noted at a Face the Nation program that Israel controlled the Senate; by 1989, he noted in his book "The Price of Empire" that

"AIPAC and its allied organizations have effective working control of the electoral process. They can elect or defeat nearly any congressman or senator that they wish..."

It is now clear to Americans, watching their youth brutalized for protesting U.S. partnership in a genocide, that their country is effectively under Israeli occupation. A foreign occupation that has permeated not just the electoral process, but the entirety of American society: academia; mainstream media; the entertainment industry; intelligence and "security".

The Masks Are Off and the Cudgels Are Out

The establishment that most Americans long assumed was loyal to their country turned out to be Israel-first traitors: people who betrayed not only American Constitutional rights but the lives and futures of the most outstanding American youth, namely:

- The president, who represents Israel's interests by not only providing most of the weapons (as well as a new pier) for the genocide but does Israel's bidding through the U.S. control of the U.N. Security Council, threatens the International Criminal Court as well as the government that brought the genocide case to the International Court of Justice;
- Congress, which is sacrificing the futures of the most outstanding American youth for Israel's interests by demanding that universities pretend that protesting genocide is criminally racist and that Constitutionally-protected freedom of speech is no longer valid;
- University leaders, who are endangering the futures of their most outstanding youth by supporting Israel's genocide instead of the students' integrity and their Constitutional rights;
- Police, many trained by Israel, who are demonstrating the brutality towards American peaceful protestors that Israel's IDF routinely employs against peaceful Palestinians. Additionally,
- Business leaders interviewed by CNN on May 1st, the head of Exxon and Kevin O'Leary, add to the shameful responses by claiming that they would never consider hiring the graduating protestors. O'Leary, shedding crocodile tears, noted that despite the masks, AI analysis could identify the retinas of the protestors' eyes, thus allowing them to be blacklisted for the rest of their lives.

Patriotic Americans Must Take Their Country Back

The students are leading the way but those who care about the integrity of their country must follow up with demands to attain future independence from foreign control. The house-cleaning might include:

- No dual-citizens in any national public office;
- AIPAC and its affiliates must be registered as foreign agents to end their election influence;
- Americans should make short work of officials who think that anti-genocide is antisemitic; and
- If AI can identify protesters, it can also identify thugs and brutal police, who might face charges.

The students with the courage and integrity to protest American criminality on behalf of voiceless genocide victims must be celebrated. They should not only be compensated for any losses from expulsion and injury, but they should receive the highest awards for patriotism. They should be recognized as the saviours whose bravery showed the way to regaining American independence.
