The CIA's "Citizen Saboteurs": Declassified Intelligence Manual Shows How the US "Destabilizes" National Governments

By Jake Anderson, December 09 2015

When most people think of CIA sabotage, they think of coups, assassinations, proxy wars, armed rebel groups, and even false flags — not strategic stupidity and purposeful bureaucratic ineptitude. However, according to a declassified document from 1944, the Office of Strategic Services (OSS), which later became the CIA, used and trained a curious breed of "citizen-saboteurs" in occupied nations like Norway and France.

Destroying Syria to Create Sunnistan. US Bombs Syrian Military Base. Turkey Invades Northern Iraq

By Mike Whitney, December 09 2015

What is the connection between the US bombing of a Syrian military base in Ayyash, Syria, and the Turkish invasion of northern Iraq?

Iraq Seeks To Cancel Security Agreement With US, Will Invite Russia To Fight ISIS

By Tyler Durden, December 09 2015

ISIS controls key cities including the Mosul, the country's second largest, and security is a daily concern for the populace. The Americans are still seen – rightly – as occupiers, and Washington's unwillingness inability to effectively counter ISIS has created a culture of suspicion in which most Iraqis believe the US is in cahoots with the militants for what WaPo described as "a variety of pernicious reasons that have to do with asserting U.S. control over Iraq, the wider Middle East and, perhaps, its oil."

Latin America: The Aborted Neo-Liberal Offensive

By Prof. James Petras, December 09 2015

The victory of hard right neo-liberal Mauricio Macri in Argentina and the disintegration of the PT do not augur a new rightwing cycle in Latin America. Macri's economic team will quickly confront mass opposition and, outside the upper class neighborhoods, they lack any political mass support.
