Arthur Neville Chamberlain (18 March 1869 – 9 November 1940) was a former British Conservative politician who served as Prime Minister of the United Kingdom from May 1937 to May 1940. Chamberlain is best known for his appeasement foreign policy, and in particular for his signing of the Munich Agreement in 1938, with Adolf Hitler, conceding the Germanspeaking Sudetenland region of Czechoslovakia to Germany.

Here in London, another Conservative Prime Minister of the United Kingdom this time prepares to concede to the demands of Benjamin Netanyahu – the belligerent prime minister of an undeclared nuclear state which is a global arms supplier – that allegedly include the annexation by Israel of the Palestinian West Bank and East Jerusalem in an appeasement foreign policy that will have severe political repercussions throughout the Middle East and Europe.

Suddenly 2015 seems frighteningly similar to 1938 as a petition signed by 106,900 concerned British citizens demanding the arrest if the Israeli Prime Minister on alleged war crime charges, is summarily rejected without any debate in the House of Commons in which the majority of the Conservative cabinet is reputed to support the CFI Conservative Friends of Israel lobby.
