April 14, 2018 - hours before the Organization for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons (OPCW), the UN chemical weapons watch dog - was to arrive in Damascus to investigate the alleged poison gas attacks in Douma - with horrifying false claims of casualties, mostly women and children - Trump, May and Macron launched an atrocious attack with 103 missiles on three or four Syrian sites which these criminals claim, the Syrian army was manufacturing chemical weapons, including Sarin and other poison gas, which then, at the order of President Assad, they used to kill their own people. As attested and regularly supervised by OPCW, Syria is free of chemical weapons since 2013.

The question begs: Why before the OPCW could verify the claim of a nerve gas attack? - The answer is simple, because there was no nerve gas attack. In fact, there was no attack at all. It was all fake and staged. The OPCW would have found out - and killed any false justification to assault Syria. That's why.

That President Assad murders his own people, is, of course, a ridiculous claim, making absolutely no sense. Having reconquered Ghouta and Douma from the terrorists, i.e. from the US, UK and French proxies - and winning the foreign imposed war, why would anyone poison their compatriots, mostly women and children. Besides, as proven by Russian soldiers who were immediately after the alleged attack on site, there was no attack, there were no signs of an attack - a fact corroborated by many people questioned in the street, none of them witnessed any attack, chemical or otherwise.

This fake event was fabricated and staged by the White Helmets, a group of Al-Qaeda trained propaganda associates to the US / NATO and their European and Middle Eastern vassals. They have done this before, passing as heroes, when in reality they are in full collusion with the different terrorist groups, trained funded and armed by the Pentagon, NATO, CIA and all those who have made it their objective to turn Syria into another chaos - and to prompt a regime change.

According to a Russian Defense Ministry, reporting on RT, most missiles (71 out of 103) were intercepted by the Syrian army's anti-missile defense system, without interference by Russia. No Russian air bases, i.e. Tartus and Khmeimim, were targeted. Nevertheless, Moscow was enraged about this preposterous and absolutely criminal and illegal assault. Maria Zkharova, the Russian Foreign Ministry's spokeswoman, decried the missile strikes as an act of cowardice, hitting a country destroyed by war "that has been trying to survive terrorist aggression for many years."

Unfortunately, according to latest reports, four Syrian civilians were killed – first degree murder by Trump, Macron and May – for which they deserve a Nuremberg type military tribunal with the same rules applied to WWII war criminals.

Trump and his brother's in crime, May and Macron, have miserably lost, and by their aggression on a mutilated country, they have strengthened the Syrian people and their allegiance to their President. Of course, none of this you are going to read in the mainstream press. Trump prides himself of a successful attack twittering as happily and brainlessly as usual,

“A perfectly executed strike last night. Thank you to France and the United Kingdom for their wisdom and the power of their fine Military. Could not have had a better result. Mission Accomplished!”

“Mission Accomplished” is so reminiscent of another horrendous war crime, when George W. Bush, ridiculously disguised as a fighter pilot, declared in 2003 after the US (plus allies) assault on Iraq claimed victory on an aircraft carrier. As the world knows, Iraq today, 15 years later, is a broken nation, a chaos no end, up to two million died, other millions of refugees, a country devastated, with infrastructure just restored sufficiently to allow US oil giants steeling Iraqi's riches.

The same story in Libya. Qaddafi had to die, because he intended to liberate Africa from the western yoke of fiscal and monetary oppression, by introducing the Libyan Gold Dinar as a new African monetary and reserve standard. As of this day the former Anglo and French colonies' monetary systems are hamstrung by the British and French Central Banks.

For example, take the “former” French colonies in West Africa (Benin, Burkina Faso, Ivory Coast, Mali, Mauritania, Niger Senegal, Togo) and in Central Africa (Cameroon, Central African Republic, Chad, Republic of Congo, Equatorial Guinea, Gabon). Their currency is the franc CFA (acronym in French for ‘Financial Community of Africa’), and although each block of West and East has its own central bank, 85% of their reserves are blocked by the Banque de France, can only be used by the respective country by special permission and often with interest to be paid to the Banque de France (the French Central Bank). Imagine! – Their colonial status today is worse than during the 400 years they were called ‘colonies’. Today, they are disguised as ‘independent’, as no media would talk about the heavy military and financial boot they are under.

Qaddafi wanted to free them. So, he had to go. That's why then French President Nicolas Sarkozy, was the initiator of the NATO campaign and eventual slaughter of the Libyan leader, Muamar Qaddafi. Today Sarkozy, ironically, is under legal proceedings for allegations of illegally accepting more than US$ 60 million from Gaddafi to finance Sarkozy's 2007 presidential campaign.

Back to Syria. What's next? One thing is for sure, Syria is on the list of seven countries that have to fall (as were Iraq and Libya), as eloquently attested by Wesley Clark in an interview with “Democracy Now” radio in 2007. That means the Washington will not relent until achieving their target, unless the empire is defeated before. So, Russia better be on guard. No longer any trust on what Washington says. It is highly likely that they will strike again. When and how is uncertain. But letting go they won't. That's their trade mark.

That's written in the PNAC (Plan for a New American Century), their strategic plan to reach full spectrum dominance, world hegemony - as 'thought out' by Zionist-led Washington "thinktanks", those that make US foreign policy. Unless, the people of France and /or the UK succeed in deposing their criminal 'leaders' (sic-sic). There is currently a move to that extent being planned by the French Parliament, but will it succeed to unseat the former Rothschild wonder-child?

Syria is a proud and strong country. Her people will stand up again and again. Their solidarity is increasingly cemented and they stand behind their President. And there is Russia, Iran and Hezbollah - an unbeatable alliance. Syria will not give up, nor cave in. The criminal west better be aware of it.
