Political activist Joshua Jadwin and former US independent presidential candidate Emanuel Pastreich discuss the current state of the United States in this critical interview.

Topics include:

- An objective consideration of the current political situation in China that avoids the reductive racist terms used in the US to create a “yellow peril” image of the Chinese people as the source of totalitarianism when, in fact, the Chinese are just as much victims of a larger agenda, partially originating in China, but largely directed from United States and Israel.
- Getting a handle on what parts of “climate change” are bogus scare tactics marketed by the corporate technocrats and which parts are deadly real. Why might the billionaires want to confuse us about what is really going on using fake science?
- Consideration of why the second amendment is critical to our future, while approaching the issue without getting sucked into the sick gun culture promoted by the entertainment media complex and weapons manufacturers.
- An objective assessment of socialism and capitalism. Could it be that in spite of all the flaws of Marx, Lenin, and Mao that they offer some real insights into how to battle global finance, organize a successful revolution, and transform the economy? Or are we just being taught by the controlled opposition to ignore socialism and Marxism so that we never learn how to fight? How can we cherry-pick socialism for what it offers us?
- Why “science” is different from “technology.” How did the ideology of technocracy, “sciencism,” bury real science in a shallow grave?
- Are all those posts about a global depopulation agenda a hoax? Or are there signs that this project is already well underway?
- How do we move beyond cardboard messiahs, pay-to-play political parties, and controlled opposition “radical critics” who just teach us to complain and do nothing? How do we organize, take action, and create an effective provisional government that can actually represent the people, not private military contractors and Israeli intelligence firms?

Excerpt from the interview.

Joshua Jadwin: How oppressive China really is now?

Emanuel Pastreich: China and the United States have signed a death pact between the two countries. And I think the Wuhan incident and the COVID-19 Operation seems likely that it was a co-conspiracy between corrupt, rogue private intelligence firms in China and the US. And the new cold war is basically a scam to keep citizens in both China and the US from understanding what’s actually going on.

China has a population that is a little bit more excited about new technologies, a little bit more obedient which goes back to thousands of years of Confucian tradition here. China, to a certain degree, has been a testing ground to push the envelope on what can be done to citizens.

The use of QR codes and the way in which public spaces, even restrooms are now being blocked, you have to use a code... It’s very invasive.

This geo-fencing ... is basically being run by Israeli firms ... using the model of the West Bank in China, and that the Chinese government is being partially occupied by Israeli, maybe Chinese, maybe Japanese and American firms who are pursuing this agenda.

So the whole new cold war is basically a front to keep us from understanding the way in which the ordinary people in the US and China are being eliminated and destroyed economically. And China is basically testing new approaches which they tend to use elsewhere.
