

The Failure of Mainstream Media

By Global Research and Global Research

Global Research, September 04, 2014

Dear Global Research Readers,

The U.S. is resuming its “humanitarian bombing” in Iraq and wishes to extend its operations into Syrian soil in order to fight the Islamic State, a group of extremists produced by U.S. foreign policy in the region. Meanwhile, on the Russian border, it is backing a neo-Nazi government in Ukraine, shelling its own citizens in order to suppress a popular uprising.

Many important questions and contradicting stories also remain regarding the tragic events of September 11, 2001. The mainstream and corporate media has failed to investigate the implausible official 9/11 narrative of the US federal government. It has failed as the watchdog of the public, leaving the job to alternative and non-corporate information media.

Global Research has worked hard to bring these critical issues to the attention of our valued readers and to the forefront of respectful debate. The destruction of the environment, the decline of civil liberties, the erosion of international law, the growing deficit of social justice, media disinformation, and so many other topics are all regularly focused on by Global Research.

In the face of mainstream media lies, Global Research has remained independent and continues to act as a vital information portal for the public, and we are grateful to all those involved in this process.

Our reader feedback has been an invaluable source of encouragement, motivation, and growth. But we also need reader support and help.

Without the support of our readers, the Global Research websites would not exist in their present forms and we would not be able to offer our valued readers the expanded coverage and services that we presently have.

Global Research does not seek financial support from private and public foundations. This is why we value every single donation and contribution made by our readers.

We encourage you to re-post Global Research articles, cite them in your work, politely talk about them to friends, use them for group discussions, and embed GRTV videos in your webpages.
