

The Israeli-Kurdish Alliance — On Video

By Justin Raimondo

Global Research, September 21, 2006
21 September 2006

Region: Middle East & North Africa
In-depth Report: IRAQ REPORT

The debate over who benefits from our invasion of Iraq entered a new phase with the publication of a research paper by Harvard University's Kennedy School of Government, written by two prominent foreign policy scholars from the "realist" camp, John Mearsheimer and Stephen Walt, "Israel and U.S. Foreign Policy" (http://www.lrb.co.uk/v28/n06/mear01_.html).

The paper not only examined the pervasive power of the Israel lobby in the U.S., but identified "the Lobby" — as they call it — as the decisive (if not the only) factor that set us on the road to war: "Pressure from Israel and the Lobby was not the only factor behind the decision to attack Iraq in March 2003, but it was critical. Some Americans believe that this was a war for oil, but there is hardly any direct evidence to support this claim. Instead, the war was motivated in good part by a desire to make Israel more secure".

The Lobby struck back at Mearsheimer and Walt, smearing (<http://antiwar.com/justin/?articleid=9045>) these two distinguished scholars as "anti-Semites", but now we see, as the chorus crying for war with Iran hikes up the volume, that the same forces are gathering to support a U.S. strike against Tehran. Furthermore, one cannot help but note that, although the U.S. is clearly not benefitting from an occupation that is draining American resources and destroying our credibility worldwide, Israel clearly is gaining — by establishing a military outpost in Kurdistan, a semi-autonomous region in northern Iraq.

Seymour Hersh did the initial reporting (http://www.newyorker.com/fact/content/articles/040628fa_fact) on this development, and now the BBC has the pictures — a stunning video (<http://news.bbc.co.uk/2/hi/programmes/newsnight/5363116.stm>) showing Israeli "ex"-military personnel training Kurdish peshmerga and setting up a base in Kurdistan.

The idea is to establish an outpost from which Israeli planes can strike at Iran's alleged nuclear facilities, and also create a presence on the ground that can strike, at will, across the Kurdish-Iranian border. The war in Iraq, in this context, has to be seen as a necessary preparatory step before the real target — Iran — could be attacked. And now that they are getting ready to do it, we can see more clearly that Israel, and not the U.S., was and is the main beneficiary of American military operations in the region. <http://www.antiwar.com/blog/2006/09/20/the-israeli-kurdish-alliance/>

The original source of this article is Global Research
Copyright © Justin Raimondo, Global Research, 2006

Comment on Global Research Articles on our Facebook page

Become a Member of Global Research

Articles by: Justin Raimondo

Disclaimer: The contents of this article are of sole responsibility of the author(s). The Centre for Research on Globalization will not be responsible for any inaccurate or incorrect statement in this article. The Centre of Research on Globalization grants permission to cross-post Global Research articles on community internet sites as long the source and copyright are acknowledged together with a hyperlink to the original Global Research article. For publication of Global Research articles in print or other forms including commercial internet sites, contact: publications@globalresearch.ca www.globalresearch.ca contains copyrighted material the use of which has not always been specifically authorized by the copyright owner. We are making such material available to our readers under the provisions of "fair use" in an effort to advance a better understanding of political, economic and social issues. The material on this site is distributed without profit to those who have expressed a prior interest in receiving it for research and educational purposes. If you wish to use copyrighted material for purposes other than "fair use" you must request permission from the copyright owner.

For media inquiries: publications@globalresearch.ca