A Guardian Report has released a set of images

“of four men they ‘urgently need to trace’ in connection with July 21’s failed bombings on three tube trains and a bus in London. All of the suspects entered Stockwell underground station just before 12.25pm, apart from the fourth suspect who is wanted for the failed attack at Shepherd’s Bush station.”

What is striking in these images from the CCTV cameras is that there seem to be very few other passengers in the London subway at a very busy time of the Day. In fact the train carriage in the picture below is, with the exception of the suspected terrorist, empty at 12.53 pm.
