A new poll from Pew shows that majorities in every country polled oppose drones ... except for Israel, the U.S. and Kenya:

Why Kenya?

Perhaps because drones have been successfully used to stop poaching of elephants and rhinos in their national parks:

Kenya is to deploy drones in all of its 52 national parks and reserves in a bid to monitor and stop the poaching of elephants and rhinos.

The move by the government follows a successful pilot project in major protected wildlife area, that saw drones reduce poaching by up to 96%.

Americans are woefully ignorant about this issue ... They still don't realize that drone bombings create more terrorists than they kill.

And as the Washington Post notes, Americans are stunningly apathetic:

We're not kidding. Americans really, really don't care about foreign policy right now — especially when they don't have to worry about losing American lives abroad.
