"If my thought-dreams could be seen, they'd put my head under a guillotine..." Bob Dylan

Well Bob, I've got news for you - they can - and that is what lies in store for all of us unless the 'thought police' fail to get their newly evolved 'anti humanity' mind scanning weapons legally integrated into everyday life.

As 'the war on terror' is notched-up to a further level of intensity, and the false-flag flagellations of New World Order exponents start outnumbering the real flag emblems of nation states, we know that we are witnessing a serious expansion of the control system's morbid attempt to dominate humanity and completely crush the power of independent thought and action.

Have no doubt, this is the intention. The current ongoing shepherding of great swathes of human beings into mind controlled pens of fear and passivity, is the precursor of a time in which any independent thought process will be treated as a serious threat to the 'normality' of a subdued and static status quo.

A 'thought crime' would include 'envisioning a better world' and considering ways of bringing it about.

But hold on ... aren't we here already? Those who challenge the status quo's perpetual commitment to war, resource mismanagement and rabid social inequality, are already seen as a threat to the state and singled out as potential terrorists

It is only a small step from here to governments backing early warning counter-terrorist security measures that would legalise the brain scanning (overt and covert) of 'suspects' held to be harbouring illicit thoughts. As such thoughts, the argument would go, would be deemed to be forerunners to inciting anti social and criminal behaviour.

Thus, to implicate the offender as a threat to the establishment, all that is needed is evidence that certain neurons situated in the area of the neocortex associated with 'free thinking', were actively engaged over 'x' period of time - and that this was sufficiently 'abnormal' for the individual to be singled out for special attention.

Under the designation 'Remote Neural Monitoring' we can already have our brains scanned and not even know it.

Yet the legacy of a largely brain-dead humanity is already strongly in evidence, and independent thinking individuals are an unusual enough commodity to be considered 'rare breeds', marginalised and even castigated, in this bleak era of fear induced mass conformism and mind numbing political correctness.

We who follow our hearts and deeper intuitions do indeed belong to the rare breeds stable – and every attempt is being made to ensure that the stable door is locked and bolted so that we can no longer pass our messages to the outside world.

On the flip side of the same coin we have ‘thought control’ – which is at an advanced stage – having been a major part of the control system’s sinister arsenal for many decades. A weapon with a special place in the carefully orchestrated strategy that surrounds the ever expanding ‘war on terror’.

The recent Charlie Hebdo horror debacle serves as a powerful reminder of just how easily millions can be instantly brought into line – when their everyday slavery is threatened by a sporadic act of preordained violence.

Let us briefly recount this phenomenon: a satirical magazine in Paris publishes, not for the first time, a stupidly insulting depiction of Mohamed. Right on cue, a clique of highly trained ‘Muslim terrorists’ perform an instant mini-massacre in a Jewish supermarket and then occupy the magazine’s HQ. The building is surrounded and the invaders are shot.

The violence, being vivid, open and rebellious, is depicted by mainstream media headlines, statesmen and the thought police, as a preposterous threat to the sanctity of freedom of speech and very fabric of French society. Tens of thousands of placards bearing the words “Je Suis Charlie” are instantly rolled-out, and the largest number of French citizens since the liberation of Paris at the end of World War 2 – well over 1.5 million – solemnly take to the streets holding up these placards “Je Suis Charlie.”

And what really is this statement saying?

It is a show of solidarity with a sick periodical that deliberately inflames racist passions by pushing the legal parameters of freedom of speech to their limits – deliberately stimulating controversy and thereby attracting ‘scandal value’ sales. It is a political tool to incite hatred and racial prejudice.

Meanwhile the perpetrators of the killings are held up as symbols of Western hating Middle Eastern/Moslem sects, bent on dispensing carnage and death to a civilised, humanitarian, law abiding Western nation. All of which is one huge lie – from beginning to end.

Outstanding for its outlandish hypocrisy is the extraordinary omission of the hell that has been unleashed, year in year out, on the peoples of Iraq, Libya, Afghanistan, Syria .. by a carefully crafted US/UK/France military consortium. Those who master-minded the post 9/11 secret service sponsored vilification and destruction of anything that dared stand-up to the hegemonic perpetual war ambitions of nations bereft of any vestige of humanitarian, spiritual or self respecting values.

If the Charlie Hebdo attack had indeed been carried out, of their own free will, by those down-trodden and abused citizens of countries bombed to hell and back by US, UK and French invaders, the millions who took to the streets of Paris would be none the wiser. Their herd-like narcissistic response had already been assured.

They had been successfully mind controlled into seeing only that their freedoms and cultural mores had suffered an 'unprovoked' challenge.

This is the sedation formula which has been used in every one of the so called 'terrorist attacks' fomented and staged by the CIA, MI5 and Mossad triumvirate over the last two decades - and well before. Attacks that enabled posturing public figureheads to pronounce an indefinite 'war on terror' - the terror which they had themselves been instrumental in setting in motion.

Mind and thought control leads on directly to internet control. Charlie Hebdo film footage that showed contradictory evidence to the mainstream story, got taken down after more than 2 million hits in less than 24 hours - and there was no 'blood and gore' on show - no excuse for the complete removal of this evidence.

All of us who run websites seeking to expose the lies and reveal the truth, know just how tenuous the situation is. Shots keep being fired across the bows of our information ships - and increasingly into them. It's being going on for years. But now, as the battle lines of extremism are once again been drawn and the orchestrated warmongering drum-rolls intensified, the glimmering lights of truth are systematically being shut down.

The widely documented David Icke insight: the establishment's rolling-out of its provocation formula 'problem, reaction, solution' is in full swing. The 'solution' requires little speculation: a complete clamp-down on any and all information that contradicts the controlling establishment's phoney 'terrorist inspired' battle plan...

"all in the interests of public safety and long-term security".. of course.

We can all play our part in countering this world-wide attempt to suffocate the voice of truth and to replace it with a global ministry of lies. By resolutely refusing to be corralled into the grey soup of mass indoctrination we will be boldly flying the flag for the liberation of humanity.

It has come down to this. Holding our ground, thinking creatively and keeping open the lines of communication: these are now the primary tools of the resistance. The lines in the sand that we will never allow ourselves to retreat from.

It is from such acts of bravery that victory can and will be realised.
