By 2017, when Klaus Schwab, the architect of the World Economic Forum’s globalist ambitions, openly boasted about how he had influenced the Canadian government, Trudeau and half his cabinet had become followers of the WEF’s Young Global Leaders program.

For years, Trudeau’s reign had been the perfect model for the governance the WEF advocates: open borders, relentless carbon taxation, unwavering alignment with NATO’s proxy wars, and deference to corporate oligarchs at the expense of ordinary Canadians.

The result? A fragmented country, a gutted energy sector, skyrocketing home prices, and the nation’s sovereignty systematically eroded by policies dictated by the boardrooms in Davos, not Ottawa.

A borderless, debt-ridden, obedient nation: that was Canada.

Justin Trudeau left in tears, as the crowd erupted in applause to celebrate his departure.

He had made Canada a disgrace worldwide also on an ethical and legal level, especially for his Ukronazi sympathies, for his Zionism, for his too many concessions to pedophilia, for having killed freedom of speech, for having imposed a ferocious discrimination against the unvaccinated, going as far as to block the bank accounts of truck drivers who protested against the measures adopted during the pandemic.

And other filth of the sort, such as for example the 15-minute concentration camp cities.

Now Trump wants Canada to become the 51st state, to give life to a North American Union.

But is it convenient for Canada to merge with a state that is up to its neck in debt?

Perhaps it is not a matter of free choice and calculation of convenience but the acknowledgement of a strategic balance of power.

After all, it is the acknowledgement of the very late of the end of the British Empire after the Indian Independence Act 1947, that of Rhodesia in 1965 and that of Hong Kong in 1997.

After the reception at the limit of the hostility received in Australia by King Charles III there is no wonder if the attachment of the Dominions to the Motherland and to the Commonwealth has largely evaporated.

Asked about his idea that Canada should be a U.S. state, Trump said:

“You get rid of that artificially drawn line, and you take a look at what that looks like, and it would also be much better for national security. Don’t forget, we basically protect Canada.”

But here’s the problem with Canada. So many friends up there, I love the Canadian people. They’re great, but we’re spending hundreds of billions a year to protect it. We’re spending hundreds of billions a year to take care of Canada. We lose in trade deficits.

Since he won the Nov. 5 election Trump has talked about the U.S. buying the Danish territory of Greenland, and the U.S. retaking control of the Panama Canal. He declined on Tuesday to rule out military or economic action as part of those desires.

Trump added:

“I can say this, we need them for economic security.”

Trump did not commit to negotiating a treaty with Panama, but said:

“Look, the Panama Canal is vital to our country.” He added: “It’s being operated by China, China, and we gave the Panama Canal to Panama.

We didn’t give it to China, and they’ve abused it. They’ve abused that gift. It should have never been made.”

“Will it be enough for the USA to promise the end of trade tariffs, tax cuts, military protection and things like that?

Will Trump maybe have to carry out some sort of Special Military Operation?

What is certain is that if they take Canada, Greenland, Panama, after having taken Sweden and Finland, the USA will regain world power.

The entire EU and the UK, not to mention Mexico, the Philippines, the southern continent, are clearly subjects of the star-spangled empire.

After all after what Israel did to Gaza, Lebanon, the Golan and Syria everything in the World is possible and plausible in International Politics...
