

UK MP Suggests People Shouldn't be Allowed to Work Without COVID Vaccine

"I can certainly see the day when businesses say: 'Look, you've got to return to the office and if you're not vaccinated you're not coming in'"

By Steve Watson

Global Research, November 18, 2020

Summit News 17 November 2020

Region: Europe

Theme: Police State & Civil Rights, Science and Medicine

A British MP faced backlash Monday after suggesting that employees in the UK should not be allowed to go to work unless they can prove that they have been vaccinated against COVID-19, when the shot becomes available.

"If vaccination works and if we're confident it's safe, and all indications so far are good, then I can certainly see the day when businesses say: 'Look, you've got to return to the office and if you're not vaccinated you're not coming in,'" said Tom Tugendhat.

"And I can certainly see social venues asking for vaccination certificates," Tugendhat added.

Far from being some extreme leftist politician, Tugendhat is a Conservative MP, he chairs the foreign affairs committee under Prime Minister Boris Johnson's government.

Tugendhat also suggested that there are precedents for requiring vaccinations for foreign travel.

"I remember when I used to travel rather more than I do now - when you go into certain countries you had to show a yellow fever certificate and if you did not have a yellow fever certificate you weren't allowed in the country and that was that," said Tugendhat.

"There was no debates, no appeals and no further requests. And I can see a situation where yes, of course you're free not to have the vaccine, but there are consequences," he added.

Tugendhat also suggested that vaccine status could even be required to use public transport, saying "It would depend what the public services were, and who and when, so I wouldn't want to start predicting."

"But I do think that if things are shown to be safe then rejecting them when they have a wider effect on the whole of society is going to have consequences," the MP added.

AN ORWELLIAN FUTURE

Tom Tugendhat, Conservative MP & Chair of the Foreign Affairs Committee, has stated he could “certainly see the day” when people are refused entry into pubs & restaurants, and they may not be allowed to return to their workplace until they've had the vaccine. pic.twitter.com/AWBlkK59Fy

— Jim Slater (@Dailybugle1898) November 15, 2020

“Conservative Tom Tugendhat has warned that he could 'certainly see the day' when proof of vaccination was required to return to normal life.”
@TomTugendhat Really??! You think this is OK?!<https://t.co/Qj8Raj5l4z>

— B Beetle (@busybee8009) November 17, 2020

Advocates for mandatory vaccination like @TomTugendhat always say that the vaccine is safe. What is safe? No vaccine can possibly be 100% safe. Has the government indemnified the vaccine manufacturers against any liability for their vaccine prior to production I wonder? <https://t.co/pvyPJ3r5HJ>

— John Fisher (@thejohnfisher) November 17, 2020

I hope this proves to be safe and accurate. <https://t.co/u1n8YhSkUf>

— Tom Tugendhat (@TomTugendhat) November 16, 2020

Make no mistake; this will be the next divide:

How to “encourage” people to take the vaccine, polls suggest at least 40% of the population will refuse

□□

Conservative MP Tom Tugendhat suggested anti-vaxers could be banned from workplaces and social venues until they get jabs

— Ajay Jagota 🇮🇳 (@ajayjagota) November 13, 2020

Tugendhat’s suggestion is just the latest in a string of indications that anyone who chooses not to be vaccinated will be effectively ostracised from society.

Airlines are likely to require passengers to sign up for a “health pass” which includes a digital certificate of vaccination against COVID-19 before allowing them to fly, according to a recent report.

The system would be similar in nature to that being considered by Ticketmaster, who it was revealed are considering making customers prove they’ve had the vaccine or a negative coronavirus test before allowing them to purchase tickets.

Ticketmaster later clarified that a final decision on such measures would be up to event organizers but that they were still mulling over the implementation of the system.

With Uber and other companies also beginning to refuse services to people who fail to comply with coronavirus restrictions, the “new normal” will likely create a lower caste of refusniks who are barred from traveling, any form of social life, and in the future even basic financial services.

*

Note to readers: please click the share buttons above or below. Forward this article to your email lists. Crosspost on your blog site, internet forums. etc.

Featured image is from Health Impact News

The original source of this article is Summit News
Copyright © Steve Watson, Summit News, 2020

Comment on Global Research Articles on our Facebook page

Become a Member of Global Research

Articles by: Steve Watson

Disclaimer: The contents of this article are of sole responsibility of the author(s). The Centre for Research on Globalization will not be responsible for any inaccurate or incorrect statement in this article. The Centre of Research on Globalization grants permission to cross-post Global Research articles on community internet sites as long the source and copyright are acknowledged together with a hyperlink to the original Global Research article. For publication of Global Research articles in print or other forms including commercial internet sites, contact: publications@globalresearch.ca www.globalresearch.ca contains copyrighted material the use of which has not always been specifically authorized by the copyright owner. We are making such material available to our readers under the provisions of "fair use" in an effort to advance a better understanding of political, economic and social issues. The material on this site is distributed without profit to those who have expressed a prior interest in receiving it for research and educational purposes. If you wish to use copyrighted material for purposes other than "fair use" you must request permission from the copyright owner.

For media inquiries: publications@globalresearch.ca