Our visit to the Sukare District in East Aleppo on Dec 24, 2016 - only days after its liberation from the Al Nusra Front terrorist occupation.

We had been inspecting one of the supposed "last hospitals in Aleppo" - the Al Quds Hospital, described as "reduced to rubble" in April 2016 by western corporate media. We found it to be remarkably intact.

While we were filming the Al Quds and surroundings an IED exploded nearby injuring 33 and killing 2. It is standard practice for departing Nusra Front and associated 'rebel' militant gangs, to booby trap much of the area they had occupied. Watch:
