Global Research, April 17, 2015

Here is a selection of the most popular articles published on Global Research this week. Among other stories James Tracy summarizes Robert F. Kennedy Jr.'s "inspired and detailed analysis of the extent to which the powerful pharmaceutical cartel has effectively captured the nation's scientific, regulatory, and law-making processes." Eric Zuesse examines the project of a "group of residents in the region of Odessa, one of Ukraine's largest cities... trying to break away from the Ukrainian government that was formed after the coup in Kiev in February 2014." Paul Craig Roberts questions Washington's idea that "450 nuclear ICBMs on 'hair-trigger alert'" is making us safe. For the complete list of the most popular articles click here.
