

White House Press Secretary: Anyone—and He Means "Anyone"—Who Criticizes Yemen Raid Owes Apology to Dead U.S. Soldier

By Nadia Prupis

Global Research, February 10, 2017

Common Dreams 8 February 2017

Region: Middle East & North Africa, USA Theme: Crimes against Humanity, US

NATO War Agenda

White House press secretary Sean Spicer on Wednesday said anyone questioning the success of a U.S. military raid in Yemen last month, which resulted in dozens of deaths, is doing "a disservice" to the American soldier who was killed in the operation.

Spicer's comments came just after Yemen reportedly withdrew permission for the U.S. to conduct ground operations in the country in response to the botched raid.

Criticism of the operation has been widespread. Sen. John McCain (R-Ariz.), who chairs the Armed Services Committee, told NBC News, "When you lose a $75 million airplane and, more importantly, an American life is lost...I don't believe you can call it a success."

During Spicer's daily briefing on Wednesday—where he has been known to make Orwellian comments on recent events—NBC News' White House correspondent Kristen Welker asked, "Yemen has withdrawn permission for the United States to run special operations and ground missions against suspected terrorists in the wake of the recent raid there that claimed so many civilian lives. Do you stand by your assessment that it is a success?"

"It's absolutely a success, and I think anyone that would suggest it's not a success does a disservice to the life of Chief Ryan Owens," Spicer said.

"But even Senator John McCain—" Welker began.

"I understand that. I think my statement's very clear on that, Kristen," Spicer said. "I think anybody who undermines the success of that raid owes an apology and... [it's] a disservice to the life of Chief Owens."

Watch the exchange below:

Owens, 36, was killed in a firefight on January 28 during an operation authorized "without sufficient intelligence, ground support, or adequate backup preparations" by President Donald Trump, as Reuters explained at the time. The raid also killed an eight-year-old girl and an unknown number of Yemeni civilians.

The Intercept journalists Glenn Greenwald and Dan Froomkin described the comments as "despicable" and "the single most repulsive and dangerous thing this moron has ever said,"

[&]quot;So you're saying that Senator John McCain owes him an apology?" Welker continued.

"I'm answering the question, please let me finish. The raid, the action that was taken in Yemen was a huge success," Spicer said.

"American lives will be saved because of it. Future attacks will be prevented. The life of Chief Ryan Owens was done in service to this country and we owe him and his family a great debt for the information that we received during that raid. I think any suggestion otherwise is a disservice to his courageous life and the actions he took, full stop."

"Is that your message to Senator John McCain?" Welker said. "He's called it a failure."

"That's my message to anybody who says that, anybody," Spicer said. "I don't know how much clearer I can be."

The original source of this article is Common Dreams Copyright © Nadia Prupis, Common Dreams, 2017

Become a Member of Global Research

Articles by: Nadia Prupis

Disclaimer: The contents of this article are of sole responsibility of the author(s). The Centre for Research on Globalization will not be responsible for any inaccurate or incorrect statement in this article. The Centre of Research on Globalization grants permission to cross-post Global Research articles on community internet sites as long the source and copyright are acknowledged together with a hyperlink to the original Global Research article. For publication of Global Research articles in print or other forms including commercial internet sites, contact: publications@globalresearch.ca www.globalresearch.ca contains copyrighted material the use of which has not always been specifically authorized by the copyright owner. We are making such material available to our readers under the provisions of "fair use" in an effort to advance a better understanding of political, economic and social issues. The material on this site is distributed without profit to those who have expressed a prior interest in receiving it for research and educational purposes. If you wish to use copyrighted material for purposes other than "fair use" you must request permission from the copyright owner.

For media inquiries: publications@globalresearch.ca