The World Health Organization has called for a “simulation” of another global pandemic so it can be assured that the totalitarian control mechanisms built into its pandemic accord are effective against the slave class. This reeks of the Event 201 simulation that occurred on October 18th, 2019, oddly not long before COVID-19 became a pandemic.

According to a report by ZeroHedge, 194 nations continue to work through drafts of pandemic agreements that would grant more authority to the World Health Organization (WHO), the GPMB (Global Preparedness Monitoring Board), a body convened by the WHO. These self-declared masters have called for a worldwide pandemic simulation to be carried out by the end of this year to test the effectiveness of the new terms before member nations sign them in 2024.

“We feel very strongly that we cannot wait for the next emergency to find out how well the pandemic accord and the IHR amendments will work; we need to know now,” Joy Phumaphi, co-chair of the GPMB, stated on May 22. “We, therefore, suggest that Member States, together with other key stakeholders, carry out a simulation exercise based on the draft accord and draft IHR amendments later this year, before they are finalized and adopted.”

“A simulation exercise beforehand, and robust monitoring and accountability following their adoption, are two ways you can ensure these important instruments fulfill their potential and that we are ready for the next pandemic,” it reads.

This is a lot like the Event 201 coronavirus simulation the rulers ran before claiming COVID-19 was a “pandemic.”

Johns Hopkins University, along with the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation and the World

Economic Forum (WEF) hosted Event 201, a high-level pandemic exercise on October 18th, 2019, in New York, NY. The exercise illustrated areas where public/private partnerships will be necessary during the response to a severe pandemic to diminish large-scale economic and societal consequences. This is an example of corporatism, where the ruling class is both the government and corporations. Considering the United States itself is a corporation, this shouldn't surprise anyone. The goal is total control and power over humanity.

The "large scale" economic and societal consequences were that the slaves willingly handed over power to their masters and obeyed commands for fear of getting a cold. They destroyed their livelihoods and proved what good lemmings they are and how easily it is to control humans en masse.

An earlier simulation, called Clade X, which was put on by the Johns Hopkins Center for Health Security saw "experts" and rulers meet in Washington D.C. to try to simulate the prevention of a pandemic. The rulers discussed roles in government with regard to Clade X, a virus with the potential to kill 900 million people.

"The trajectory is about centralizing power over health emergencies," David Bell, a public health physician, and former WHO staffer specializing in epidemic policy, told The Epoch Times. "It will centralize authority within the WHO, particularly in the director general, and it will broaden the scope to what they call One Health."

Another simulation may give us an idea of what to watch out for in the future.
